Slitting, Scoring & Perforating on the Press

Even if your press is not fitted with a perforating attachment you can still perforate, slit or score while you print – in the one operation.

PERFECT-PERF is a flexible rule that you attach to the impression cylinder so that while you are printing, the job can be perforated simultaneously.

Available in 6, 8, 12 or 16 teeth to the inch, PERFECT-PERF is also for slitting and scoring. It comes in 6.1 metre rolls (20 foot) and is heat hardened to stand up to long runs.

PERFECT-PERF, PERFECT-SNAP, PERFECT-SLIT works equally well on a large web press, a business forms machine or a small offset press.

DO YOU REALISE?

That using staples not supplied by the name brand manufacturer can cause production and quality problems.

Staples vary considerably from different manufacturers in the tolerances of steel grade, steel hardness and even the gauge thickness, which can differ ever so slightly.

Consequent problems include wearing of grooves in the metal housing of the stapler and the actual driver blade. Staple jams, downtime and a poor quality of staple stitch are the result.

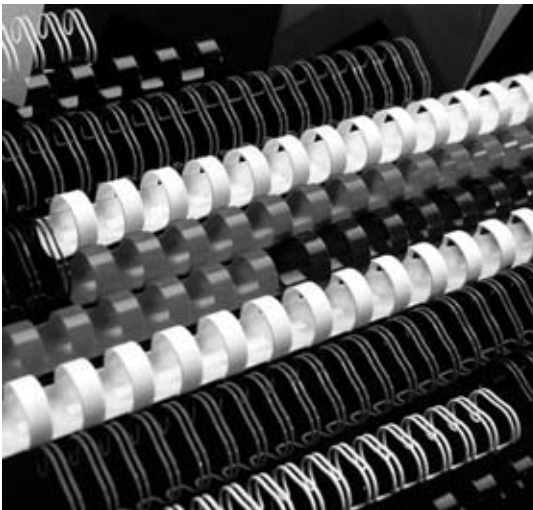

Hudson's stocks genuine staples direct from the manufacturers.

- STAGO
- SKREBBA
- NAGEL / MULTINAK
- RAPID

A QUICK TIP: Stapling capacity depends upon the thickness of the paper rather than the number of sheets often quoted in specifications.

Hudson's suggests that you use a staple size about 4 mm longer than the paper stack to be stapled.
